

Jackson ImmunoResearch Supports Local Organizations |

1

Supporting local organizations is important to Jackson ImmunoResearch, and over the years we have been proud to donate to charities and institutions both within and outside of the scientific community. The most recent cause that we have chosen to support is the Children's Brain Tumor Network (CBTN). In a recent website survey, we pledged to donate $10 per person to CBTN on behalf of all who participated.

The CBTN is a global collaboration of more than 20 leading childhood brain tumor research and treatment centers located in the USA, Europe, Asia and Australia. An overview of their recent research projects is available here. Jackson ImmunoResearch headquarters are located in the Philadelphia region near the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia (CHOP), the Operations Center of the consortium. CHOP is currently ranked 1st nationally for their Pediatric Cancer Program by U.S. News & World Report and incorporates an extensive laboratory and clinical research program. We are honored to count them among our valued customers for secondary antibodies and reagents and appreciate the tremendous work that they do.

For more information regarding CBTN feel free to check their website here, and the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia here.